Start colon cancer screenings at age 45

Years ago, doctors may not have mentioned colorectal cancer prevention until a patient's 50th birthday. But now, the New York State Health Department, the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force and the American Cancer Society advise people with an average risk for colorectal cancer to begin regular screening at age 45. If you're wondering why, here's what you need to know.

The latest guidelines

News reports often focus on individual studies. Yet no single study tells the whole story. That's why experts base health guidelines on a careful review of all the relevant research. Based on the overall evidence, here's what state and national health organizations say:

- If you're age 45 to 75 and have an average risk of developing colon cancer, get screened regularly.
- If you're age 76 to 85, talk with your provider about whether to continue screenings.
- If you're 86 or older, screening is not recommended.
- If you're at an increased risk for colon cancer and younger than age 45, ask your healthcare provider when to begin screenings. Risk factors include having inflammatory bowel disease or a personal or family history of colon cancer or polyps. Polyps are abnormal growths that might turn into cancer later.

The best test for you

Screening can help catch colon cancer early, when treatment works best. Even better, when polyps are found and removed, cancer can be prevented.

If you're at an increased risk for colon cancer and younger than age 45, ask your healthcare provider when to begin screenings

Providers may use various tests to check for colon cancer or polyps:

- Stool tests look for blood or altered DNA in a stool sample.
- Flexible sigmoidoscopy is a procedure in which the provider uses a short lighted tube to look at your rectum and lower colon.
- Colonoscopy is a similar procedure to flexible sigmoidoscopy in which the provider uses a longer lighted tube to look at your rectum and entire colon.
- CT colonography uses X-rays and computers to create images of your entire colon.

Each test has its pros and cons. Talk with your provider about which test is right for you and how often to have it done.

For more information on colorectal cancer testing and treatment, call Schuyler Hospital (607) 535-7121.

GET READY FOR AN ELECTRIFYING NIGHT OF MUSIC, MAYHEM, AND MAN-EATING PLANTS

as Little Shop of Horrors takes center stage at the Watkins Glen High School Auditorium on March 21- 23, 2025. This smash-hit musical brings a unique blend of horror, comedy, and unforgettable songs to the audience. This is a story of down-on-his-luck Seymour (Nick Brusso), who pines for his beautiful co-worker Audrey (Natalie VanSkiver), at Mushnik's (Grady Cole) Skid Row Florists. Unfortunately Audrey is dating the sadistic dentist Orin Scrivello (Isaac Hendrickson). When Seymour stumbles across a strange and interesting new plant he names Audrey II (Kaylin Smith), it looks like he may get everything he's ever wanted.....or does he? The catchy tunes and back up harmonies provided by the doo-wop trio of Crystal, Ronnette, and Chiffon (Zeyona Westervelt, Aurora Scott, and Lilac Cruz) and a talented ensemble cast (Kylie Swan, Norah Stegner, Arloween Loucks-Scuteri, Trinity DePree, and Annabelle Thompson) will have audience members tapping their feet and singing along. Little Shop of Horrors is being performed under the guidance of Kelsey Gill (Director), Alex Gill (Set Director/Technical Director), and Kim Laursen (Music Director). Sam Brubaker, Sr. Class Advisor, is the Producer. Tickets for the show are sold at the door. Prices are as follows: Adults - $12; Students/Seniors - $10; and Children ages 5-10yrs - $5. Show times are 7pm on March 21st and 22nd, and 2:30pm on March 23rd at the Watkins Glen High School Auditorium.
